Mrs. Springer was well and favorably known in Rush county and north-eastern Shelby county. The greater part of her life was spent on the farm where she died.

Deceased was of a charitable and cheerful disposition, and her wide circle of friends will mourn her death. Until recently she enjoyed good health, being of a robust nature.

The high school basket ball team will go to Shelbyville Friday night to play the high school team of that city. A crowd of rooters will accompany the local team. Capt. Bankert reports his "men" in excellent condition and anticipates adding a "ditto" to the victory over the same team in this city recently.

A dispatch from Anderson to the Indianapolis News yesterday said: "Mrs. Martha Danner, a pioneer of Rush county, is thought to be fatally ill at the home of her son Morton Danner of this city. She lived for many years at Homer, before coming here."

YOUNG MAN LOST INDEX FINGER TUESDAY MORNING

Henry Butts, a section employe on the Big Four, met with a painful accident Tuesday while loading some car wheels into a box car in the Big Four freight yards.

A wheel was being lifted into the car and it slipped on the rail and the young man's index finger was caught, mashing it off near the middle joint. Dr. Coleman dressed the injury.

CUPID HURDLES THE OBSTACLE

Elmer May Marries the Woman of his Choice after Short Delay

DUE TO MONEY FLURRIES

Weds Salvation Army Lassie—Romance Began at Muncie; Ends at Hymens Old Stand

No doubt a great many who read the story entitled, "Mammon vs. Cupid" which appeared in the columns of the Daily Republican recently, were of the opinion that it was a piece of fiction. But far from the land of fiction was the story, for it was teeming with truths and facts. It had to do with a young man in this city who was scheduled to be married, but had to postpone that happy event on the eve of the day set on account of the stringency of the local money market and the flurries which blew, storm-like full into his face.

The young man was Elmer May, a dishwasher then, but second chef now, in the employ of Whitehead, the caterer, in West Third street. Mr. May, while in the ranks of the Salvation Army at Muncie, met, wooed and won a pretty little Army lassie with an angelical face. The romance began in the barracks and on the street corners where the two latched together for souls and ended at Hymen's altar.

Thanks to the relief which came to the financial world when the big stick was welded on the Wall street speculators, Elmer was able to cash some paper he had been holding some time and sing out "on with the wedding feast." Quietly did he slip out of this city last week, and meeting the woman of his choice, a Miss Catherine Vories, of Dunkirk, the pair were made one. Fox that he is, he did not bring his wife back to this city for the present for his friends were preparing to give them an ovation, and if there is anything Elmer does like it is ostentations of any sort. He left his wife at Anderson, and will bring her here within the next few weeks.

When he wrote her saying that the wedding must be postponed for reasons best known to himself, he feared that she would not understand, doubt his sincerity and throw him overboard. To safeguard against being left in the world alone, Elmer kept a "line" busy in this city until he had clinched the deal at Dunkirk.

All is well that ends well, and Elmer as happy as a big "May" flower.

DIDN'T LIKE TO HAVE THE MUZZLE PUT ON

About eleven o'clock Saturday night some unknown party threw a pool ball in close proximity of where City Marshal Price and Frank Porter were standing engaged in conversation. It is thought that the person who threw it was a man whom Porter refused to sell a drink a few hours before.

Bird Dog Sold by Jinks Wright said to be Common Curs

TRIAL IN INDIANAPOLIS

Rushville Breeder Was Best but Declares Court was a Farce

Charles "Jinks" Wright, a barber employed by Norm Norris, in this city, was the victim of a "dog gone" good story this week, although the tale of the dog is not through wagging.

Several days ago he shipped some high bred dogs to an Indianapolis dealer, sending them collect on delivery. For several days he waited but no financial returns came. Upon inquiry he learned that the dealer was attempting to sidestep the deal by complaining that the dogs were not as represented and classing them as curs. The dealer, who had paid over his money to the express company, now sought to reclaim his funds, and caused a replevin suit to be instituted against them.

The case was called for trial Monday in a squire's court in Indianapolis and Wright accompanied by Will L. Newbold went to Indianapolis. The local attorney appeared in the interest of Mr. Wright and the "reputation" of the dogs which had been dragged in the dust, but all in vain. After asking for a continuance of the trial, that they might introduce expert testimony in the person of the breeders from whom Wright bought the mother of the dogs at issue. The testimony in question was granted without the appearance of the witnesses that the trial could proceed at once. And it did proceed, but in a farcical manner, so "Jinks" says.

The Indianapolis Star tells the story as follows:

"Two whining black and white puppies of tender age formed an interesting exhibit in Justice A. R. Hutchinson's court yesterday afternoon while the court and lawyers endeavored by various means to determine whether they were pure-blood Llewellyn setters or just common ordinary dogs. Ralph S. Barrett, of 1725 College avenue bought the puppies of Charles Wright, a Rushville breeder of Llewellyn setters. Barrett alleged that the pups were not what he had ordered and filed a replevin suit against the United States Express company in an effort to recover the $30 which he had paid for them. H. S. Humphreys, a breeder, was called to give expert testimony. He declared there was no doubt that the pups were only curs of mixed breed and on the strength of this the court found for the plaintiff."

GREEN GOODS MEN WERE QUITE ACTIVE

Many Rush County Farmers had Offer Made to them Last Year

If you were not approached by the green goods swindlers during the past year, consider yourself slighted, for it is a slur on your financial standing. Every day brings fresh reports of Rush county citizens who had "propositions" made to them.

It is said that two men drove up to the farm of "Kit" Anderson, south of this city last fall and without much ado, made an offer to furnish him with some of the "queer" at wholesale prices, but the offer was promptly turned down.

"Anyone else take a package?"

SCHOOL ROOM OF TIRED AND HALF-ASLEEP CHILDREN CAN BE THOROUGHLY REFRESHED

School Room of Tired and Half-asleep Children can be Thoroughly Refreshed

RUSHVILLE SCHOOLS LEAD

In Many Departments but in this Particular One, They Stand Pre-eminently Alone

The Rushville schools are far superior to the schools of the average small cities in many respects, but in equipment, buildings and talented faculty do they especially stand out among others. One of the departments handled in a thorough manner is the teaching of singing under the efficient directorship of Miss Ida Mariam Sparrier. Mention is made of this fact at this time as the question of the great influence of song on children is now occupying the thoughts of many prominent educators throughout the country, and a deal of discussion is now on.

The Indiana State Teachers' Association, at its recent session in Indianapolis adopted a resolution requesting the next Legislature to pass a law authorizing township trustees throughout the State to provide special teachers of music in the district schools. This doubtless relates to singing, which all children should have opportunity to learn.

The value of vocal culture as a part of education has not been recognized in the public schools of this country, as a rule, as it should be, except in the city schools. The young take naturally to music, and the effects of song on the mind, temper, behavior, bodily habits and health of growing children are undoubtedly beneficial. This quite apart from the esthetic and humanizing influence of music. Indeed, voice culture in itself is humanizing, without reference to music. A school-room full of tired or half-asleep children can be thoroughly refreshed by the singing of a hearty song.

In all European countries vocal music has a place in the school curriculum.

During this lapse of years the old hall has been overhauled, remodeled and rechristened the Grand theatre "Jimmy's" subscription to the Clipper and Bill Board starts Saturday.

TIGER HAS MOVED

Pike County Terror Is Now Lurking In Swamps of Snyder's Gulch.

PEOPLE STILL TERRORIZED

Jungle Fugitive Has Been Seen and Heard on Numerous Occasions to Neighborhood's Alarm.

One Near Tragedy Has Occured and Another Near Tragedy Turns to Comedy.

Hazleton, Ind., Jan. 22.—The tiger which has been terrorizing the people of Pike and Gibson counties for a week, is now in the swamps of Snyder's gulch, ten miles northeast of here. Vere Warren and Robert Armstrong say they saw the beast and Willis and Perry Young, who live near the foot of Snyder's gulch, say they heard the animal distinctly a dozen times. Scott Ennis and William Roschipe, who live about a mile away from the swamp, sat up all night and listened to the cry of the tiger.

The swamp where the animal was seen and heard is covered with water from three to six feet deep and is impassable even in boats on account of the immense amount of brush and drift in the water. The swamp is more than a hundred acres in extent and is formed by Congress creek, which in the neighborhood has no banks and spreads out over a large tract of dense woods.

A party of coon hunters of this place almost turned their evening's sport into tragedy when Carl Robb and a number of local sportsmen were crossing the tracks of the E. & T. H. railroad. The dogs struck a trail and a short chase soon ended at a tree festooned with wild grape vines. In the moonlight the hunters saw a form they thought might be the body of the tiger. It was high in the tree. Before a shot could be fired they heard a half-frozen tramp cry "don't shoot." The man proved to be a tramp, who was allowed to come down from his perch and a fire was built. He had been passing along the track a few rods ahead of the dogs and they caught his tracks while crossing the rails and immediately gave chase. The tramp said he climbed a tree by the grape-vine route for fear the dogs were ferocious.

Harry Russell, seventeen years old, living near Patoka, loaded his father's old musket with an extra large charge of powder and went out to hunt the tiger. His dog scared up something in the woods and young Russell fired, thinking the animal was upon him. The gun burst and the young man was knocked to the ground, suffering injuries which may terminate fatally.

RAN HIS COURSE AT MUNCIE

Clever Criminal Arrested, Who is Wanted in Pennsylvania.

Muncie, Ind., Jan. 22.—Acting on advice from Braddock, Pa., the local police arrested Robert Carr, alias Christopher C. Fell, and are under the impression that they have captured a clever criminal. He represented that he wished to buy a saloon, spent his money lavishly, and when he was arrested he displayed a check-book indicating that he had $1,500 deposited to his credit here.

A Muncie bank did permit him to deposit a check and gave him credit, but refused to pay out money until his standing at Braddock was investigated. Braddock reported that he had no money on deposit, and that he was wanted there for fleeing a bank by the same kind of game. Before he was arrested he cashed a number of checks about town for small amounts, all drawn on the Braddock banks. The warden of the prison at Frankfort, Ky., says that Carr is a fugitive from that institution.

RAILWAY MAN BURNED TO DEATH.

Fort Wayne, Ind., Jan. 22.—James R. Meriwether of this city was burned to death while at his cottage at Rome City. Mr. Meriwether was chief clerk to Superintendent B. H. Hudson of the Grand Rapids & Indiana Railway company. He made a trip to the family cottage to see that all was in good shape. He was alone at the time. Two men fishing through the ice a half mile distant saw him rush out of the house and hurl himself into the snow. It was plainly seen that his clothing was afire, as the flames leaped above his head. The two men hurried to his assistance, but before they arrived he was a charred corpse. In the cottage were found the utensils with which he was preparing to make coffee. Probably too much fluid dropped into the drip cup of the gasoline stove, causing an explosion when a match was applied.

HAD BEEN THROUGH FOUR COURTS.

Anderson, Ind., Jan. 22.—A jury in the circuit court has rendered a verdict of not guilty in the case of Budd Johns, saloon keeper of this city, who was charged with subornation of perjury. It was alleged that he had induced Dennis Sweeney, nineteen years old, to repudiate an affidavit that he made against Johns in police court, when he said he bought liquor at Johns's place on July 4, 1906. The case had been through four terms of court.

INTERESTING EVIDENCE

Old Letters Corroborate Young Mrs. Thaw's Tragic Story.

New York, Jan. 22.—District Attorney Jerome's long and severe cross-examination of Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw at the trial of her husband came to an end late yesterday afternoon. The attorneys for the defense then succeeded in placing in evidence a letter written by the defendant in the fall of 1903, which completely corroborated the claim that the girl who was to become his wife did tell him the story of her relations with Stanford White much as she has related it upon the stand at this and the former trial. This letter was one of a dozen which were read to the jury as tending to corroborate young Mrs. Thaw's testimony, and as further tending to show the effect her story had upon the defendant's mind. Most of these letters were read to the jury in the former trial and were considered as one of the strongest bits of evidence in the hands of the defense.

Mr. Jerome objected to their introduction into the record, but was overruled by Justice Dowling after Thaw himself had made a waiver of the confidential relation of counsel and client when Frederick W. Longfellow, his former attorney, appeared on the stand to identify the letters.

THE SENATE AND THE COURTS

Shall the Former Harass the Decisions of the Latter?

Washington, Jan. 22.—The senate discussed the propriety of authorizing one of its committees to investigate the circumstances connected with the issuance of an injunction in the case of the Hitchman Coal and Coke company vs. John Mitchell, by Judge Alston G. Dayton of the United States circuit court of the northern district of West Virginia. Senator Culberson asked to have a resolution for that purpose adopted and Senator Hale thought the senate should not harass judges in their decisions and he did not favor such a resolution unless there was considerable ground for believing that a judge had exceeded his authority. Considerable time was spent in debate on the bill to revise the criminal code of the United States. In the house of representatives an amendment was added to the penal code bill making it a criminal offense for any officer or employee of the government to give out advance information regarding any crop statistics authorized by law to be prepared.

UNCLE SAM TAKES A HAND

Haytiens Soon to Be Confronted by an American Cruiser.

Washington, Jan. 22.—Because of the disturbed conditions in Hayti, and as a guarantee for the protection of American interests, it has been decided to dispatch the cruiser Des Moines to that island, with her headquarters in the vicinity of the troubled section. The gunboat Eagle, Captain Marvell commanding, now at St. Marc, will look after the protection of these interests until the arrival of the cruiser. The immediate reason for the increase of the naval force in Haytien waters was the receipt of a dispatch from Captain Marvell, which in addition to reporting the fact that St. Marc had been retaken by the government forces, added that a number of buildings had been burned and that the property of an American had suffered. The Des Moines is now on her way from Boston to New York, and will take aboard her regular supply of ammunition at the latter place and at Norfolk, Va.

ACCIDENTS ON INCREASE

Casualty Bulletin Sets Out Some Startling Figures.

Washington, Jan. 22.—Startling figures appear in an accident bulletin just issued by the interstate commerce commission covering the months of July, August and September, 1907. The report shows that the number of casualties on railroads during that quarterly period were 23,063, including 1,339 killed and 21,724 injured. This is an increase of 167 in the number killed and 3,956 in the number injured, as compared with the corresponding period of 1906.

Collisions and derailments in the quarter number 4,279, including 2,240 collisions and 2,034 derailments, of which 320 collisions and 222 derailments affected passenger trains. The damage to cars, engines and roadway by these accidents amounted to $3,605,696. This shows an increase in the number of collisions and derailments of 607 over the corresponding period of 1906.

Behind Closed Doors.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 22.—The climax of W. J. Bryan's visit to Frankfort was reached yesterday afternoon when he spoke to the Democratic members of the legislature behind closed doors, advocating the election of former Governor Beckham as United States senator. Mr. Bryan said neither Governor Beckham nor anybody else had invited him to Frankfort.

Wants to Give Chaplains a Show.

Washington, January 22.—Believing that the religious part of the proceedings of the house of representatives should be preserved in official form, Mr. Houston, of Tennessee, has offered a resolution directing that the prayer with which the chaplain opens each day's session be printed in the Congressional Record.

Gruesome Discovery in River.

Pittsburg, Jan. 22.—The body of a man as yet unidentified was recovered by workmen on an Ohio river boat at the foot of Mulberry street. The man apparently was about forty years of age and had been dead a month.

FUTURE'S POSSIBLE NEEDS

Equipment Now on Hand and in Preparation Could Hold the Foe Awhile at Last.

Enough Rifles on Hand at Present to Equip 731,000 Infantry.

Washington, Jan. 22.—Brigadier-General Crozier, chief of the bureau of ordnance, U. S. A., in the course of a statement made to the house committee on military affairs, which had under consideration the army appropriation bill, gave some interesting information concerning the government's preparation against possible war needs of the future. General Crozier said that the United States had now on hand enough rifles to equip 731,000 infantry. The Krag-Jorgensen, of which there are 400,000, are being replaced rapidly by the new weapon known officially as the model of 1903, of which 331,000 already are in use or on hand. As fast as the 1903's are distributed the Krags are stored for emergency use by volunteers or apportioned among the several militias. General Crozier said that if the government and private factories were to run two shifts a day 1,500 of the new rifles could be turned out daily. The United States has on hand 60,000,000 of Krag-Jorgensen ammunition and 22,000,000 rounds of ammunition for the new model.

General Crozier adverted to the fact that when all of the states have complied with the federal provision extending monetary aid to such militia organizations as conform their organization, equipment and discipline to that of the regular army, the regular army of 60,000 men can be augmented at quick notice by 110,000 state troops. The estimates for the army appropriation bills are $92,000,000, as against $78,000,000 appropriated by the last congress.

ACCIDENTS ON INCREASE

Casualty Bulletin Sets Out Some Startling Figures.

Washington, Jan. 22.—Startling figures appear in an accident bulletin just issued by the interstate commerce commission covering the months of July, August and September, 1907. The report shows that the number of casualties on railroads during that quarterly period were 23,063, including 1,339 killed and 21,724 injured. This is an increase of 167 in the number killed and 3,956 in the number injured, as compared with the corresponding period of 1906.

Collisions and derailments in the quarter number 4,279, including 2,240 collisions and 2,034 derailments, of which 320 collisions and 222 derailments affected passenger trains. The damage to cars, engines and roadway by these accidents amounted to $3,605,696. This shows an increase in the number of collisions and derailments of 607 over the corresponding period of 1906.

RUSHVILLE, INDIANA, JANUARY 29, 1908

The Republican editors at their meeting last week, declared themselves emphatically against the civil service law, because "it is detrimental to the service and places a premium on the political molly coddle." It is a peculiar fact that most Congressmen are always opposed to the civil service law when circulating among the voters of their districts, but in favor of it when snugly settled in Washington.

James E. Watson is one of the eloquent men of the Republican party. Today he has met many Huntington Republicans and his genial personality and cordial recognition have made him more friends than ever. As a campaigner Mr. Watson is a wonder.—Huntington Herald.

Yes, and when he is nominated, as surely he will be, he will make such a personal and speaking canvass of the State as was never known before. Mr. Watson can do it. By the way, the above is from a paper in the northern part of the State, where it is claimed that Miller is strong.

That ex-mayor Schmitz of San Francisco has had the judgment rendered against him repealed by the Appellate Court is a misfortune. No man should wish injustice to be done to another man however criminal he may be. But in the case of Schmitz it is glaringly true that he was a grafter, corrupter and pretty well everything that was bad. That because of some flaws in the indictment or some defects in the laws of California supposed to cover his case, it is possible for him to regain his freedom, is therefore a disappointment to every lover of clean city government and an encouragement to evil doers. Still there are other indictments pending against Schmitz and probably justice will ultimately be done. Certainly the men who have set themselves to transform the moral character of San Francisco are not going to give up the fight.

Several questionable cases of rape, or improper advances have occurred in Rush county recently where innocent men suffered—partly due to too much one-sided law and partly on account of public opinion. In one case a man suicided rather than face his neighbors and friends, and in two other cases two men suffered imprisonment. It is about time that this condition be remedied. In the latest case, according to the story of the girl, she was compelled by her parent to accuse a young man. Of what material is a father made who leads a fifteen-year-old girl into paths that will ultimately result in making a professional blackmailer out of that child. This is a matter that needs attention and an example should be made of such cases. If this thing is carried much farther no one will be safe from malicious designs upon him or his purse.

The new postal regulation which prohibits the sending of papers at pound rates to subscribers that are more than a year in arrears may at first work some slight inconvenience and cause some grumbling. It may also result in the loss of a few delinquent subscribers, but in the end it is likely to prove a blessing to both papers and subscribers.

Almost every paper has subscribers who, while they pay promptly the grocer, coal merchant and other men with whom they deal, yet let their subscription for the local paper remain unpaid for years to the financial inconvenience of the editor who needs money just as badly as any other business man. Of course the smallness of the sum is oftentimes the reason why subscribers neglect to pay. If the matter is suggested to them they reason that it is of so little consequence a further delay will hurt none. In all this it is overlooked that while any individual sum thus owing may be small, the aggregate of such sums is usually large and their payment would mean much to the editor. The new rule will work in favor of prompt and advance payments and will be recognized as a benefit by all when people get accustomed to it.

INDIANA POLITICS

BY ROBERT G. TUCKER

Indianapolis, Ind., January 22.—At a recent meeting of the Eleventh district committee it was decided to hold the congressional convention to name a Republican candidate for congress at Marion, March 12. Ten candidates are now in the field. They are Mayor McKee, Logansport; George Lockwood, Marion; E. Kling, Peru; Joseph Murphy, Wabash; W. H. Shaffer, North Manchester; Judge C. W. Watkins, Huntington; Gus Condo, Marion; Thomas B. Tharp, Marion; Charles Reeves, Hartford City, and Dr. Charles Good of Huntington county. Two more are expected from Huntington county, one from Wabash and one from Grant, with a slight probability of one more from Cass.

The Indiana Democratic club will give a banquet at the Claypool on the night of Feb. 17, with William Jennings Bryan as the guest of honor. Mr. Bryan will speak at a men's meeting here on the preceding day, and has consented to remain for the banquet. Covers will be laid for 700 people, and it is expected that the banquet will attract party leaders from every county in the state. Stokes Jackson of Greenfield was given a rousing reception last night by Democratic leaders of Indiana in honor of his election as state chairman. At Greenfield he sounded the keynote of the party for the coming campaign in Indiana. He reiterated his allegiance to William Jennings Bryan and declared in no uncertain terms that the state would swing into line for the commoner in his fight for the party nomination at the Denver convention. Mr. Jackson again declared that he is not the agent of any faction of the party in Indiana and that he is determined to work for party harmony. "I shall be open to the counsel and advice of all Democrats," said Chairman Jackson. "There shall be no distinction between the men who favored and the men who opposed my election as chairman. I will counsel with all, and you may rest assured every one will be given a chance to work for party success."

Secretary Elmer Dover of the Republican national committee is in Indianapolis conferring with Chairman Harry S. New concerning arrangements for the Republican national convention in Chicago. At a recent meeting of the subcommittee in Chicago, the architect's plans for the convention hall were approved, but many minor arrangements are yet to be made. It is expected that Chairman New and Secretary Dover will complete practically the preliminary arrangements so that work on the hall may proceed without delay.

Co-operation Needed In Life Insurance.

By Ex-President CLEVELAND, Chairman of the Association of Life Insurance Presidents.

THE perils and trials that have overtaken life insurance and the AFFLICTIONS THAT STILL THREATEN IT not only admonish to more careful and scrupulous management, but they teach lessons that cannot be neglected without disregard of common worldly wisdom. Life insurance companies not accused of wrongdoing, but caught in the storm of VIRULENT AND INDISCRIMINATE ATTACK, have, as well as the guilty, failed to find friends in quarters where they should have found them, and their policy holders, who should have been their ALLIES AND DEFENDERS, have by thousands been quite willing to join the ranks of their enemies.

Unfortunately the business phase of life insurance has not been as universally understood as its SENTIMENTAL features. When the time came for the arraignment of life insurance before the people they saw stupendous lists of figures showing receipts and assets so ENORMOUS as to stagger their comprehension of legitimate accumulation.

ANOTHER THING WHICH, IT SEEMS TO ME, HAS BEEN ESPECIALLY SHOWN TO BE OF VERY GREAT IMPORTANCE TO LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES IS THE CULTIVATION OF A CLOSER AND MORE INTIMATE RELATIONSHIP BETWEEN THEM AND THEIR POLICY HOLDERS. WITH FAIRNESS AND LIBERALITY ON THE PART OF THE COMPANIES AND AN EXACT UNDERSTANDING OF WHAT THE POLICIES MEAN ON THE PART OF THE ASSURED THEY OUGHT TO BE FRIENDS, WITH A MUTUAL INTEREST IN EVERYTHING THAT AFFECTS THE RIGHTS AND FAIR TREATMENT OF THE COMPANY.

This condition cannot exist if contracts of insurance are MISLEADING AND DISAPPOINTING, if solicitors of insurance are allowed to roam about the country misrepresenting the advantageous terms they are authorized to offer, if dividends and other reasonably anticipated beneficial incidents are not forthcoming or if policy holders are allowed to remain in SLOTHFUL INDIFFERENCE to the fact that unfairness to their companies is unfairness to them and that the unjust taking of money by legislation or otherwise from the funds which are held by their companies IN TRUST for them cannot be regarded otherwise than as a wrongful and unjust diminution of their INDIVIDUAL savings or possessions.

CURRENT COMMENT

Faith Cures In the Orthodox Church.

It was to be expected that should the orthodox church engage in the work of healing human ills by faith the results would be gratifying. The key point in curing by appeals to the mind is the suggestion that the sufferer is right in wishing to be well. The question is where lies the power to effect the cure. The average sufferer is inclined to think at first that nothing much is the matter. The necessity of going to a regular physician is in itself often depressing, and the patient waits until the ailment has progressed so far that the serious visage of the doctor is but natural under the circumstances, however much it may add to the patient's mental depression.

Many systems of faith cure which have become popular in this country ask the sufferer to look to some human source for aid, generally appealing to the patient's own resolution. A few direct the thought to a higher power. Utmost confidence is essential in every case, and of course the higher the authority the more intense and lasting will the confidence be. To orthodox believers the church is the agent on earth for the supreme power of the universe. The thought that this omnipotent power is enlisted for the relief of individual human ills is inspiring at the very start. The surroundings of a patient seeking relief at the church portals will be cheering. The aim of the church is to lift up. It points upward, and exaltation of the mind is often just what the sufferer needs to open up the springs of healing.

Employers' Liability.

Adverse decision by the supreme court of the United States upon the constitutionality of the employers' liability act was not unexpected, because capable jurists had already given their verdict against it, on grounds similar to those recited in the opinion of the highest court of the land. Since the passage of the act in 1906 cases have been tried under it in two United States circuit courts of different districts, with results unfavorable to the complainant, both judges declaring the act of June 1, 1906, unconstitutional and both reaching their conclusions by the same line of reasoning.

The right of an injured employee to recover damages from his employer is not endangered by this decision. The question before the reviewing court turned upon the power of congress to deal with this particular phase of the relation between master and servant. The idea that the employee is entitled to damages for injuries sustained in operations controlled by his employer is widely upheld in this country, and in his last message to congress the president recommended the early enactment of a model employers' liability law under which government employees may be protected.

CART WHEELS DONT GO IN CONNERSVILLE

Even if it is a Buggy Factory Town—Police Stop a Burlesque Show

John Potter was Tuesday morning fined twenty dollars and costs, amounting in all to about thirty dollars before Mayor Barrows, says the Connersville News, on the charge of "having in his possession, and giving away lewd, obscene and lascivious papers and hand-bills, advertising a certain burlesque company, to-wit, 'The Paris Gayety Girls.'" John paid his fine like a man that was used to it. He is the manager of a show that appeared at the Andre Opera House. The bills were of the standard theatre shape with women in many suggestive poses and some of the language on the bills needed no interpreter to make its meaning plain. Mayor Barrows was early apprised of the character of the show and sent Chief Barker to watch the performance. The house was well filled. Several little acts of the "fairies" on the stage were allowed to go with a cautionary warning by the chief, who had a front seat, but when one of the damsels turned a "cart wheel" hand spring across the stage, Barker rose in his wrath, club in hand, and brought the exhibition to a close.

ONLY ONE OTHER WORD MEANS MORE TO MEN

A good sized crowd was in attendance last night to hear Dr. V. W. Tevis at St. Paul's M. E. church. In all probability the revival services will conclude with three more meetings, tonight, Thursday and Friday nights.

In order to perpetuate the memory of her husband, General Custer, who was massacred by Indians at the battle of the Little Big Horn in 1876, Mrs. Elizabeth Custer has purchased sixteen lots in Bronxville, Westchester county, N. Y., on which she will build a large memorial home, says the New York Journal. Mrs. Custer intends to make the memorial a permanent home for aged literary women. The site for the building is near the Harlem railroad station and not far from Lawrence Park, where many artists and literary people reside. Mrs. Custer has written several books and takes a great interest in literary women.

The Woodpecker.

A composition by Lorena Hardwick, daughter of James Hardwick, of Orange township, and a pupil of District No. 1 Orange township, D. O. Alter, teacher.

The Woodpecker belongs to the Picidae family. This family consists of one hundred and fifty species. They are represented in all the wooded parts of the world except Australia and Madagascar. The length of the birds is from seven to nineteen inches. Their wings are from three to nine inches, and their tails from two to six inches in length. The Woodpecker has a long slender bill, which aids it very much in securing its food and building its nest.

Some Woodpeckers have four toes. The hind toe being well developed, and all four connected by webs. On some the hind toe, if present, is not connected with the others.

The two best known species of the Picidae family are the Red-headed Woodpecker and the Hairy Woodpecker. The Red-headed Woodpecker's head, neck and breast are crimson. The lower part of its body is white, and its back is glossy blue black. The upper part of the Hairy Woodpecker's body is black, with a white stripe down the middle of the back. The head has white stripes on the sides and a red band across the back. The lower part of its body is whitish. The outside tail feathers are white. The others are black or black and white. The female is similar, but lacking the red on the head. The young birds' heads are dark gray until they are about one year old.

Nearly seventy-five species of the Picidae family are found in the New World. Twenty-five of these are found in North America. Some of these are the Downy, Carolina, Ivory-billed, Pileated and Golden-winged Woodpeckers and the two species previously named.

In summer the food of the Woodpecker consists of ants, beetles, caterpillars, grasshoppers, flies, plant lice, spiders, and many other insects. They also eat some fruit, but about three-fourths of their food is insects, of which very few are useful.

In winter they feed upon beechnuts, acorns, and many other kinds of nuts. They will not winter in a locality where there are no nuts.

The Woodpeckers build their nests about the first of April. They build them in holes in fences, orchard trees, dead willows, along streams and in dead stumps in the woods. Both birds take part in preparing the nest and caring for the young. They raise only one brood each year. The nest of the Pileated Woodpecker is built from twelve to seventy-five feet from the ground. The opening is here to three and one-half inches in diameter, and the excavation is from seven to thirty inches deep, being larger at the bottom, which is covered with chips or sand. A new one is generally built each year.

The Woodpecker lays from three to nine eggs which are white or glossy white. The time of incubation is from twelve to fourteen days, and is done by both birds. The young birds are colored similar to the adults. They are fed insects, by the parent birds dropping them into their mouths.

Men and cats are enemies to the birds. Man will sometimes take the lives of the birds, because they think they are injuring fruit or grain, when they are only hunting insects. The cat catches the birds for food.

When the Pileated Woodpecker is approached it will give a call, which sounds like ha-he, ha-he, and flies away. The Red-headed Woodpecker's call in the spring is kurr-kurr.

Some of these birds do not migrate. Others migrate in Autumn and return to their northern homes about the first of April. Some hoard nuts in the autumn and drill a hole in a dead tree, where they spend the cold winter nights.

Birds are of great value to man. They destroy insects, and in that way they save the crops. The songs of the birds are very sweet, and help to make the world happy. It is a pleasure to watch the birds. I have seen large flocks together, that seemed to be calling in almost all kinds of tones, but as soon as a person appeared among them, their song was ended.

The Fighting Chance.

... By ...
ROBERT W. CHAMBERS.

Copyright, 1906, by Robert W. Chambers.

Grace Ferrall came into the room and found a duel of silence in progress under the dull fire glow tinting the ceiling.

"Another quarrel," she commented, turning on the current of the drop light above the desk from which Seward had risen at her entrance. "You quarrel enough to marry. Why don't you?"

"I wish we could," said Sylvia simply.

Grace laughed. "What a little fool you are!" she said tenderly, seating herself in Seward's chair and dropping one hand over his where it rested on the arm. "Stephen, can't you make her—a big, strong fellow like you? Oh, well; on your heads be it! My conscience is now clear for the first time, and I'll never meddle again." She gave Seward's hand a perfunctory pat and released him with a discreetly stifled yawn. "I'm disgracefully sleepy. The wind blew like fury along the coast. Sylvia, have you had a good time at Shotover—the time of your life?"

Sylvia raised her eyes and encountered Seward's.

"I certainly have," she said faintly.

The dinner was very gay. The ceremony of christening the Shotover cup, which Quarrier had won, proceeded with presentation speech and a speech of acceptance faultlessly commonplace, during which Quarrier wore his smile—which was the only humorous thing he contributed.

The cup was full. Seward eyed it, perplexed, dreading, yet seeing no avenue of escape from what must appear a public exhibition of contempt for Quarrier if he refused to taste its contents. That meant a bad night for him. Yet he shrank more from the certain misinterpretation of a refusal to drink from the huge loving cup, with its heavy wreath of scented orchids, now already on its way toward him, than he feared the waking struggle so sure to follow.

Marion received the cup, lifted it in both hands and said distinctly, "Good hunting!" as she drank to Quarrier. Her brother Gordon took it and drank entirely too much. Then Sylvia lifted it, her white hands half buried among the orchids. "To you!" she murmured for Seward's ear alone, then drank gayly, mischievously. "To the best shot at Shotover!" And Seward took the cup. "I salute victory," he said, smiling, "always and everywhere. To him who takes the fighting chance and wins out! To the best man! Health!" And he drank as a gentleman drinks, with a gay bow to Quarrier and with death in his heart.

Later the irony of it struck him so grimly that he laughed, and Sylvia, beside him, looked up, dismayed to see the gray change in his face.

Later at cards the aromatic odor of Alderene's decanter roused him to fierce desire, but he fought it down until only the deadened, tearing ache remained to shake and loosen every nerve. And when Ferrall, finishing his usual batch of business letters, arrived to cut in if needed Seward dropped his cards, with a shudder, and rose so utterly unnerved that Captain Voucher, noticing his drawn face, asked him if he were not ill.

—He was leaving on an earlier train than the others, having decided to pass through Boston and Deptford, at which latter place he meant to leave Sagamore for the winter in care of the manager of his mother's farm, so he took a quiet leave of those to whom the civility might not prove an interruption. In the big hall he passed Marion and stopped to take his leave.

No, he would do no hunting this season either at Carysford or with the two trial packs at Eastwood. Possibly at Warrenton later, but probably not. Business threatened to detain him in town more or less.

And that was all, unless he disturbed Sylvia, seated at cards with Quarrier and Major Belwether and Lella Mortimer and very intent on the dummy, very still and a trifle pallid with the pallor of concentration.

So that was all, then.

Ascending the stairs, a servant handed him a letter bearing the crest of the Lenox club. He pocketed it unopened and continued his way.

In the darkness of his own room he sat down, the devil's own clutch on his shrinking nerves, a deadly desire tearing at his very vitals and every vein a tiny trail of fire run riot. He had been too long without it, too long to endure the craving aroused by that gay draft from Quarrier's loving cup.

The awakened fury of his desire appalled him, and for awhile that occu-pled him, enabling him to endure. But fear and dismay soon passed in the purely physical distress. He walked the floor, haggard, the sweat starting on his face; he lay with clinched hands stiffened out across the bed, deafened by the riotous clamor of his pulses, conscious that he was holding out, unconscious how long he could hold out.

He turned on the light later to look for his pipe, and he caught a glimpse of himself in the mirror. It was a sick man who stared back at him out of hollow eyes, and the physical revulsion shocked him into something resembling self command.

"D—n you!" he said fiercely, setting his teeth and staring back at his reflected face. "I'll kill you yet before I've finished with you!"

Then he filled his pipe and, opening his bedroom window, sat down, resting his arm on the sill. A splendid moon silvered the sea. Through the intense stillness he heard the surf, magnificently dissonant among the reefs, and he listened, fascinated, loathing the tides as he feared and loathed the inexorable tides that surged and ebbed with his accursed desire.

Once he said to himself weakly, for he was deadly tired, "What am I making the fight for anyway?" And, "Who are you making the fight for?" echoed his heavy pulses.

He had asked that question and received that answer before. After all, it had been for his mother's sake alone. And now—and now? His heart beat out another answer, and before his eyes two other eyes seemed to open, fearlessly, sweetly, divinely tender. But they were no longer his mother's.

After the second pipe he remembered his letter. It gave him something to do, so he opened it and tried to read it, but for a long while, in his confused physical and mental condition, he to comprehend its could make no sense of it.

Little by little he began to comprehend its purport—that his resignation was regretfully requested by the governors of the Lenox club for reasons unassigned.

The shock of the thing came to him after awhile like a distant, dull report long after the flash of the explosion. Well, the affair, bad enough at first, was turning worse, that was all. How much of that sort of discredit could a man stand and keep his balance? And what would his mother say?

Confused from his own physical suffering, the blow had fallen with a deadened force on nerves already numbed, but his half stupefied acquiescence had suddenly become a painful recoil when he remembered where the brunt of the disgrace would fall, where the center of suffering must always be and the keenest grief concentrated. Roused, appalled, almost totally unnerved, he stood staring at the letter, beginning to realize what it would mean to his mother. A passion of remorse and resentment swept him. She must be spared that! There must be some way, some punishment for his offense, that could not strike her through him. It was wicked, it was contemptible, insane, to strike her. What were the governors of the Lenox about, a lot of sniveling hypocrites, pandering to the horrified snobbery at the Patrooms? Who were they, anyway, to discipline him? Scarce one in fifty among the members of the two clubs was qualified to sit in judgment on a Seward!

But that tempest of passion and mortification passed, too, leaving him standing there dumb, desperate, staring at the letter crumpled in his shaking hand.

He must see somebody, some member of the Lenox, and do something—something! Ferrall! Was that Ferrall's step on the landing?

He sprang to the door and opened it. Quarrier, passing the corridor, turned an expressionless visage toward him and passed on, with a nod almost imperceptible.

"Quarrier!" he called, swept by a sudden impulse.

Quarrier halted and turned. "Could you give me a moment here in my room? I won't detain you."

The faint trace of surprise faded from Quarrier's face. He quietly retraced his steps and, entering Seward's room, stood silently confronting its pallid tenant.

"Will you sit down a moment?"

Quarrier seated himself in the armchair by the window, and Seward found a chair opposite.

"Quarrier," said the younger man, turning a tensely miserable face on his visitor, "I want to ask you something. I'll not mince matters. You know that the Patrooms have dropped me, and you know what for."

"Yes, I know."

"When I was called before the board of governors to explain the matter, if I could, you were sitting on that board."

"Yes."

"I denied the charge, but refused to explain. You remember?"

Quarrier nodded coldly.

"And I was dropped by the club?"

A slight inclination of Quarrier's symmetrical head corroborated him.

"Now," said Seward, slowly and very distinctly, "I shall tell you unofficially what I refused to tell the other governors officially." And as he began speaking Quarrier's face flushed, then the features became immobile, set and inert and his eyes grew duller and duller, as though under a smooth surface the soul inside of him was shrinking back into some dark corner, silent, watchful, suspicious and perhaps defiant.

"Mr. Quarrier," said Seward quietly, "I did not take that girl to the Patrooms club, and you know it."

Quarrier was all surface now. He had drawn away internally so far that even his eyes seemed to recede until they scarcely glimmered through the slits in his colorless mask. And Seward went on:

"I knew perfectly well what sort of women I was to meet at that fool supper Billy Fleetwood gave, and you must have, too, for the girl you took in was no stranger to you. Her name is Lydia Vyse, I believe."

The slightest possible glimmer in the elder man's eyes was all the answer he granted.

"What happened," said Seward calmly, "was this: She bet me she could so disguise herself that I could safely take her into any club in New York. I bet her she couldn't. I never dreamed of trying. Besides, she was your—dinner partner," he added, with a shrug.

"Quarrier," said Seward earnestly, "what happened in the club lobby I don't exactly know, because I was not in a condition to know. I admit it; that was the trouble with me. When I left Fleetwood's rooms I left with a half dozen men. I remember crossing Fifth avenue with them, and the next thing I remember distinctly was loud talking in the club lobby and a number of men there and a slim young fellow in Inverness and top hat in the center of a crowd whose face was the face of that girl Lydia Vyse. And that is absolutely all. But I couldn't do more than deny that I took her there unless I told what I knew, and of course that was not possible, even in self defense. But it was for you to admit that I was right, and you did not. You dared not! You let another man blunder into your private affairs and fall a victim to circumstantial evidence which you could have refuted, and it was up to you to say something. And you did not! And now what are you going to do? The Lenox club has taken this thing up. A man can't stand too much of that sort of thing. What am I to do? I can't defend myself by betraying my accidental knowledge of your petty private affairs. So I leave it to you. I ask you what are you going to do?"

A PERSIAN SERVANT.

He Was Poetical Even if Useless and Dishonest.

In one way Persia reminds one dimly of England, for there are such things as difficulties with servants even in Teheran. The author dismissed one of his servants, who, as he had been a tailor, was incompetent to do anything but sew on buttons. The man protested, "What will become of me now that I have been eating your salt for such a long time and am driven out into the streets?" He was reminded that he had only been employed for a fortnight. He answered that he felt it had been for years. He was told that he was no good, but his volubility only increased. "How can I be no good after having stayed with you? Can you forget what Sa'di said: 'A piece of clay having fallen into the Hammam from my beloved's hand into mine, I said to it, Art thou musk or ambergris that I am drunk with thy perfume, which catches at the heart?' It answered: 'I was but a worthless piece of clay, but I was in company with a rose for a moment. This companionship transformed me or else I should still be the same piece of clay that I was.'"

One can pity the state of an English mistress confronted with such an argument. The author kept his servant another week, and he remarks disconsolately that in that time he discovered that if the tailor was a poet he was also a thief.—London Globe.

AMUSEMENTS

A private skating party will hold the boards at the Kramer skating rink tonight.

The third bill of the Hooser Vaudeville circuit shown here last night is like good wine, for it improved with age. Encouraged by an increased attendance each succeeding week, the management has diplomatically added better talent for the patronage warranted it. Heretofore vaudeville performances in the smaller cities and rural districts have lived an "up-hill" life because the people were not educated to them. Erroneous ideas of a vaudeville show were held by many for they did not appreciate the fact that the polite circles of the greater cities are and have been "vaudeville mad" for several years; and it might be classed as a sane madness, for there is no end to the resourcefulness of the vaudeville stage, as every actor and talent known to the histrionic world can be and is introduced in this form of entertainment. A large crowd saw a well balanced bill at the Grand last night. The motion pictures were exceptionally good and the illustrated songs, which always find a warm spot in the hearts of theatre goers of all temperaments were above the standard. One of the acts that stood out above many other meritorious ones and had all the earmarks—and incidentally the birthmarks, for it was an initial performance—of the acts usually found in the high priced houses in the cities, was the clever singing act of Woods & VanLieu. They had their act dressed well and employed good light and other effects, giving the whole a pleasing appearance. Both sing well and they were heartily encored. R. N. Bailey in a blackface monologue, made good as did Alfreda Anderson, who put on a good, singing single turn. There are certain people when they cannot smell the powder smoke of a melodrama, are only satisfied when dust is "kicked up" in a good dancing act; they got theirs in the Dancing Down's act Stanley & Scanlan, in their musical oddity "Did you see Gladys?" hit the right spot with the crowd and received their share of the applause. One of the dainty bits of the evening was the singing of Margaret Gray. She is possessed of a well rounded voice and her act went big Applause was the order of the night, and it was not made by the ushers or "claks" either. The bill will be repeated tonight with but few changes. Popular prices prevail. Seats on sale at Hargrove & Mullins' drug store.

Manager Kohl, of the Auditorium, Connersville, takes pleasure in announcing to his patrons the engagement of Nixon & Zimmerman's opera company in "Miss Bob White" for Saturday, January 25th, with Mr. Frank Deshon in the role of "Billie Van Million," the part which he created several seasons ago. This announcement should come as a distinct pleasure to the theatre goers of this city. The story is simple, yet decidedly humorous, and deals with the comical adventures of two young millionaires, who to pay an election bet, have to tramp through the country in rags and tatters without a cent for a month. They arrive at the farm of Farmer Rod, at whose place the great heiress "Claire Livingston" is masquerading under the nom de plume of "Miss Bob White." She recognizes them, and although in love with one of the rich chaps, has no end of fun with them in their ignorance of all that pertains to a farm. Musically Miss Bob White is the terry cream of comic opera, being tuneful without being trashy. "Love Comes Like a Summer Sigh," will be remembered by many as one of the sweetest and daintiest waltz melodies ever written by an American composer. An all star cast has been engaged to support Mr. Deshon, as the following well known names will testify: J. Lee McCune, Matt Hanley, Wm. Laverty, Jos. Leighton, Loris Scarsdale, Helen May, Zillah Harris and Lillian Parrett.

Admiral Capps Answers Muck-rakers In Talk Before Committee.

MADE A CALM STATEMENT

Without Using Shorter and Uglier Word He Said Critics Didn't Know Whereof They Spoke.

Various Charges Brought by Magazine Writers Against Navy Shot Full of Holes.

Washington, Jan. 22.—Rear Admiral Capps, chief of the bureau of construction, U. S. N., spent an hour with the house committee on naval affairs in defending, denying and controverting some of the various charges brought by newspapers and magazine writers against navy methods of battleship construction. Members of the committee had before them copies of a recent magazine article which attacked the department of construction as incompetent and inefficient. From time to time as the charges contained in the article were cited by members, Admiral Capps replied in detail. While he showed no feeling in his replies, his attitude was that "these criticisms are attacks on a highly technical subject by writers devoid of technical learning."

The gist of Admiral Capps's statement was that the methods of construction employed in the navy are correct in principle and highly successful in results.

RIOTING IN BERLIN

Thousands of Unemployed Workmen Make Demonstration.

Berlin, Jan. 22.—Serious rioting occurred yesterday in the vicinity of the reichstag building, where the Socialists' interpellation regarding the Prussian suffrage system was scheduled to come up. About 4 o'clock in the afternoon some 2,000 persons, mostly unemployed men and half-grown boys, marched through the streets, intending to reach the reichstag, but found the bridges over the Spree occupied by the police, who summoned a mounted division to assist in dispersing the crowd. A large number of the rioters were severely wounded by the officers. Sixteen of them were carried to a nearby charity hospital and many others managed to make their way there with some assistance to have their wounds treated. Some of the injured are in a serious condition. Ten policemen went to headquarters for treatment, having been bruised and cut by

ACT QUICKLY

Delay Has Been Dangerous in Rushville

Do the right thing at the right time Act quickly it times of danger. Backache, kidney danger. Doan's Kidney Pills act quickly. Cure all distressing, dangerous kidney ills.

Plenty of evidence to prove this. Mrs. W. A. Wylie, 1029 N. Sexton Street, Rushville, Ind., says:

"My husband had typhoid fever and after recovering found that his kidneys were left in a weakened condition. The secretions from his kidneys passed too frequently and caused him to rise many times during the night. His back was lame and ached a great deal and he suffered from frequent headaches. When he saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised, he procured a box at F. B. Johnson & Company drug store. They quickly corrected the urinary trouble and his back has almost regained its former strength. The pain has left and I have not heard him complain of a backache since. He thinks highly of Doan's Kidney Pills and we are pleased to recommend them to other sufferers."

Operations "by Fire and Sword" in Philippines Brought Into Question.

Washington, Jan. 22.—A resolution by Mr. McCall of Massachusetts calling on the secretary of war to explain "the perpetration of certain outrages in the Philippines," has been offered in the house.

The resolution cites the Manila Opinion, an American newspaper issue of Dec. 7, 1906, as authority for the statement that in the previous May, "in the course of an attempt to capture or kill one Isio, alleged to be a

Mr. McCall's resolution requests the secretary of war "to transmit to the house any information he has touching the issuance of such orders, and if such orders were issued to inform the house by what authority of law, and what, if any, steps have been taken to punish the issuing of such orders and the perpetration of such outrages upon peaceful inhabitants."

SELF-CONSTRUCTED THRONE

For One Day in the Year King John IV. Receives Homage of Subjects.

Paris, Jan. 22.—The annual mass commemorating the death on Jan. 21, 1793, of Louis XVI., at the church of St. Germain-L'Auxerrois, was the occasion yesterday for the usual manifestation by a small group of royalists and clericals in favor of the kingly pretensions of the descendants of Charles William Naundorff, who in 1834 set up a claim to the throne of France on the ground that he was the real Louis XVII. In accordance with the old custom, "John IV," as the present "king," who is a wine merchant, styles himself, held a miniature court after the mass and received the homage of his servants. The authorities in Paris no longer pay any attention to this annual comedy.

Jasonville, Ind., Jan. 22.—That the validity of the remonstrance which was recently carried against the saloons of this place and filed with the county commissioners at their last regular meeting is to be contested by the saloon men is known. The saloon men have paid a lawyer to fight the case. The temperance people thought the matter had been settled.

IDEAL MONUMENT FOR THE NATION.

Redwood Canyon Deeded to the United States.

FINE STAND OF GIANT TIMBER

Natural Forest of Redwoods Will Be Named Muir Woods, After the Noted Naturalist—Superb Pleasure Ground For Tourists—The Big Trees Not Cut

One of the most public spirited gifts ever made to the United States government has come from William. Kent of Chicago, who has just deeded to the United States 295 acres of primeval redwood forest on the southern slope of Mount Tamapais, about six miles from the city of San Francisco, says a Washington dispatch. The land was deeded to the government with the approval of Forester Gifford Pinchot, chief of the United States forest service. The papers have now gone to the secretary of the interior, and a proclamation declaring the canyon a national monument will be signed at an early date.

This means that more of California's redwood giants will be saved for the scientific study and pleasure of the whole country—in fact, the whole world—for the great sequoias are only found in the Golden State. This grove given to the government by Mr. Kent is one of the only tracts of redwood forests to be found in their natural state in California today. The land is said to have cost Mr. Kent $47,000 some years ago, but its stand of redwood timber alone is now valued at more than $150,000 on the market.

The canyons of Tamapais, which drain into San Francisco bay, were cut clean years ago, and the redwood obtained from them went into the construction of the old San Francisco. The giants on the tract to be known as "Muir woods" escaped the ax, however, chiefly because the outlet is on the ocean side instead of the bay side and also because the various owners of the land have for sentimental reasons jealously guarded the timber from harm or destruction. Modern methods of logging would make short work of the timber and would, besides, put a handsome profit in the hands of the owners.

It is the intention to name the national monument Muir woods, after John Muir, the noted naturalist. The giants of Redwood canyon will now be given permanent protection by virtue of the act of June 8, 1906, which provides that objects of scientific interest may be declared national monuments if such action is deemed necessary for their preservation and protection. This 295 acre tract will be a pleasure ground as well as a place for scientific study for the people practically of the whole of California, for within a radius of fifty-two miles on the canyon two-thirds of the population of the entire state are centered.

The chief reason for the permanent protection of the land by the government is that there is no other redwood grove in the whole world more accessible to so many people. The canyon is in absolutely primeval condition, not so much as scratched by the hands of man. It lies within an hour's ride of San Francisco, at the very doors of hundreds of thousands of people.

So long as the land remains in private ownership there is always danger that the trees will be attacked, and Mr. Kent feared this, but as a national monument they will be safe for all time. There are, of course, many finer stands of redwood in California, but there are no typical groves owned by the United States, nor are there any which might be acquired by the government except at great expense. Originally this land was part of the old Spanish grant, Rancho Sausalito. The largest redwoods are eighteen feet in diameter at the butt and will approach 300 feet in height, rising with perfectly straight and clean stems. As none of the big trees have been cut, their age is, of course, somewhat problematical, but it is safe to say that the veterans have stood from a thousand to fifteen hundred years.

The total stand of redwood, roughly estimated, is about 30,000,000 feet, with some 5,000,000 feet of fir and a very considerable amount of tanbark oak. The redwood alone, at a fair valuation, has a market value of $150,000 as it stands. Except for a narrow strip of brush along the east border and a fringe along the southwest line, the whole canyon is covered with a dense forest growth. The stand is heaviest along the creek and on the lower slopes, becoming poorer above. Redwood is the dominating tree, towering high above everything else and forming fully three-fourths of the whole forest. Douglas fir is next in importance, and scattered over the entire tract are all the various hard woods common to the region, chief among which are the numerous oaks, madrone, alder, maple and mountain laurel, all of which form a kind of dwarf underwood to the lofty redwood and fir. The redwood occurs both in big and small groups and by single trees, while the other species are sprinkled throughout.

The destruction of redwood by lumbering has been so rapid in the last decade that it is now only a question of years when the original growth will have wholly disappeared. Its extraordinary scientific and educational value, along with the fact that it is a pleasure ground for all of the people who live in or visit this part of California, makes the wood an ideal national monument.

PSYCHOLOGY FOR DRUNKS.

Bishop Fallows Will Try His Religious Cure For Inebriates.

A sanitarium for the treatment of drunkenness and drug habits is being planned by Bishop Samuel Fallows of the Reformed Episcopal church, says a Chicago Dispatch.

"Christian psychology" is to take the place of the gold, aromatic spirits of ammonia, seltzer water and sobering devices. Already a number of wealthy philanthropists have written the bishop regarding his proposed treatment, and all express approval of his plan.

"There is no doubt that drunkenness and drug habits can be cured by Christian psychology," said the bishop. "Drunkenness is a disease of the nerve tissues. At present I am compelled to refuse to treat inebriates, as I have no suitable place for the work."

BEWARE OF PHYSIC

Only Peggervates Stomach Trouble and Never Cures.

The trouble with most people who have stomach trouble is that they do not like to take the time to get cured; they overeat and then take physic, which simply upsets the stomach and never cures.

While relief follows one or two doses of Mi-o-na stomach tablets, chronic and long-standing cases need at least two or three weeks' treatment before the sick headaches, dizzy spells, bloating, heartburn, constipation, nervousness and other symptoms that directly result from indigestion are banished never to return.

Mi-o-na is entirely different from the ordinary stomach remedies. It is taken before meals, stimulating the secretion of digestive juices and strengthening the stomach so that it can do its proper work.

With every 50 cent box of Mi-o-na Johnson's drug store give us guarantee to refund the money unless the remedy cures.
